WISTARIA

WITHOUT any doubt Wistaria is the finest flowering vine in cultivation for the temperate climate. It is adaptable to all conditions, for pergolas, to cover dead or live trees, to cover unsightly buildings, to beautify lovely buildings, as formal tree-like plants for formal gardens, in bush form on the lawn, and many other purposes.

Wistaria may be raised from seed and under certain favorable conditions may produce flowers within a reasonable time.

Many nurseries sell seedling Wistaria, as they can be produced cheaply, but the unfortunate result for the unlucky buyer is, they may not flower in his life time. For good and reasonably prompt results, it is absolutely necessary that Wistaria must be produced, grafted, from flowering wood, at least from flowering vines. This process of grafting has a distinct tendency to slow up the growth and will under all circumstances produce flowers within two or three years after transplanting from the nurseries. Under certain favorable conditions, especially with larger vines, one can be assured of flowers at once. Under no circumstances should gardeners plant seedling Wistaria.

Our Wistaria are all grafted from scions taken from blooming vines or from flowering wood. Our stock should bloom at once or very soon after planting. Grafted plants cannot be sold as cheaply as seedlings. Seedlings may not bloom for ten years.

WISTARIA CHINENSIS (Chinese Wistaria) is an excellent sort proven by being the most commonly known Wistaria in our gardens. This species is very fragrant, and is available in two distinct varieties as indicated below:

WISTARIA CHINENSIS—Purple. This is the most popular variety of all, perhaps because it is found in most every nursery.

Japanese Longcluster or Weeping Wistaria

JAPANESE WISTARIA, the most picturesque of all Wistaria, will certainly take the place of the common sort as soon as enough plants are available, at least for use as a pergola vine; a glance at our illustrations will prove that. The flower clusters are very much elongated, the flowers being somewhat thinly distributed along the central cord, or stem, producing an unrivalled, graceful effect.

Be sure to order one or two vines at once, as the supply is limited. If we have sold out when your order arrives, your order may be booked either for next fall or spring planting season. Along with the description of each variety, you will find the number we can spare for each customer. If not limited, it will also be stated. No Wistarias will be supplied to dealers.
